"PRAVDA" CALLS FOR STRICTER PARTY CONTROL OVER ENTERPRISES

In heading the growing political and labor upsurge of the masses, the Party organizations are looking more closely into the economics of enterprises and are exerting ever greater influence in production affairs. The new tasks iresented our industry demand an increase in the role of Party organizations in the struggle for fulfilling production plans and for further technical progress. The operation of Party organizations in controlling administrative activities must be improved. The right to such control, granted by the Charter of the VKP(b) to Party organizations, over industrial and transport enterprises, kolkhozes, Miss, and sowkhozes has been completely justified in practice.

Control by Farty organizations over the economic activities of an enterprise's administration is precisely that form of influence by which the one-man control (yedinonachaliye) of an industrial manager is united with daily Party leadership. By this method, Party organizations do not replace, are not equal to, and are not the guardians of economic managers, but they help them, guide the economy by meane of them, and strangthen the principle of one-man control.

The right of control is not restricted to a discussion of a report by the director or making this or that resolution. The correct and complete realization of this right means, first of all, the daily work of Farty organizations with workers and managing personnel, and the instruction of workers and managers in the spirit of the Bol'shevik party, in the spirit of steadfast observation of the state's interests and of state discipline.

When an enterprise is not utilizing all its reserves, the Party organization should study the matter and point out to the enterprise's managers how these reserves can be best utilized. When an enterprise director, in his concern to fulfill the quantitative aspects of a plan, forgets about quality of production, net costs, and assortment, then the Party organization is obligated to interfere in the activity of the enterprise management and demand the punctual and unconditional fulfillment of the qualitative indexes set by the plan. The utilization of the basic capital of an enterprise must be constantly under the unremitting control of Party organizations.
